From the speaker at the September meeting:

Dear Sheltie Club Members,

Thank you so much for inviting me to your club to speak about estate planning with pets in mind. Your love and enthusiasm for your dogs is evident, and it was a great pleasure to learn more about each of you! I learned a lot by speaking with you, and I hope you took something from the presentation as well. Please feel free to reach out to me if you do think of any additional questions you have. Have a wonderful fall!

Thanks again,

CISSC MEMBER PROFILE

In an attempt to make our Showdown a little more personal, I will be sending a questionnaire to all members (chosen randomly by an "app") to complete. The purpose is to get to know each other a little better. The following is the first in the series.

Carole Creech
Whitehall Shetland Sheepdogs
CISSC President

How and when did you become interested in Shetland Sheepdogs? I became interested in the early 1980's when a friend that I worked with had one. She was a little tricolor girl named "Winnie the Pooch." She was so cute and smart.

What do you like best about the sheltie?
Their loyalty and intelligence.

What activities do you like to do with your sheltie? Do you compete in any venue with your dog? If so, what venue/s?

Conformation, obedience and agility.

Currently just conformation, but I would like to get back into training in agility and obedience when my schedule permits.

Do you breed? If so, how often? What health screenings do you believe are important? Yes, but I have only had 4 litters in 30 years. All health screenings are important!

To what other dog related associations do you belong? American Shetland Sheepdog Association and the Indiana Purebred Dog Alliance.

What made you interested in joining CISSC and how long have you been a member? In what CISSC activities do you participate? A friend who bought a littermate puppy to mine invited me to a CISSC meeting in 1985. I joined in November 1985. I have held several offices over the years and am currently President of CISSC.

Do you have any other breeds? Not at this time, although I have a fondness for Dachshunds and PBGVs.

Describe your "ideal" sheltie. Moderate and structurally correct with great reach and drive.

Do you have a favorite color for a sheltie? I like them all, but blue merles are my favorite.

What other hobbies/interests/accomplishments would you like to tell us about? Dog related – founded the Indiana Purebred Dog Alliance (IPDA) in 2009 to fight state legislation detrimental to hobby breeders. I am the current President of IPDA. Healing Touch – I became interested in energy healing after experiencing a healing from a Healing Touch Practitioner in 2011. I took classes from 2012-2016 and became a Certified Healing Touch Practitioner (CHTP) in September 2016. Since then, I have given Healing Touch treatments to many dogs and cats (and people!).

Kennel cough is a highly contagious upper-respiratory infection seen in dogs of all ages. Kennel cough is a general term used for the infection that can be caused by canine adenovirus type 2, parainfluenza virus, canine respiratory coronavirus, or Bordetella bronchiseptica bacteria. Although kennel cough is seen in dogs of all ages, it is most severe in puppies less than 6 months old and in immune-compromised dogs.

Symptoms

Dogs that are affected by kennel cough usually have a quick onset of clinical signs, the most common being a cough which gets worse with exercise, excitement, and/or pressing on the neck region. Most dogs that become ill with kennel cough will get better without any medical treatment in 10-to-14 days, although some develop a more severe form and need medical attention. Some signs that your dog may be developing a more severe case or have something more concerning, such as canine influenza, are: fever, colored nasal discharge, lethargy, lack of appetite, and increased effort when breathing. If you believe that your dog has contracted kennel cough, it is best to consult with your veterinarian, as some cases require medication.

Causes

Dogs come in contact with kennel cough from being in crowded conditions, such as boarding kennels, training facilities, and dog shows. If a dog is exposed to kennel cough, he usually begins to show signs in three-to-seven days. Kennel cough is primarily seen during the spring and summer, but can occur at any time when a large group of dogs are together.

dog has been around, such as food/water dishes, crates, bedding, and clothing.

To help prevent your dog from becoming infected with kennel cough, there are several precautions that can be taken. After coming home from shows, you should disinfect crates, bedding, and bowls. During shows, dogs should not be allowed to have nose-to-nose contact with other dogs or be allowed to drink from common water sources. Handlers should wash their hands between touching one dog and another. For dogs that are at high risk for the disease, there is a vaccine that they may benefit from receiving. The vaccine will not prevent the disease, but will lessen the symptoms and duration of the disease. It can also decrease the amount of time that the sick dog can shed the disease.

There is no need to fear the disease if the right precautions are taken, and you take steps to quickly isolate and care properly for sick dogs.

Prevention

If you have a dog that becomes ill, it is best to isolate that infected dog until at least two weeks after the last cough. Once kennel cough has come into a kennel, it is best to clear out the kennel for one-to-two weeks and clean with common disinfectants (such as bleach). It is important to remember that the disease can be spread by contact with objects that the infected
